current solid-liquid extraction coupled on-line to capillary electrophoresis. The counter-current solid-liquid extraction (CC-SLE) technique was coupled on-line to capillary electrophoresis (CE) for the separation and preconcentration of some beta-blockers (acyclonolac, pindolol, metoprolol, and propranolol). The electrophoretic background electrolyte (BGE) was composed of 7mM ammonium tetraborate and 5% acetonitrile at pH 9.2, and the counter-current eluent was a saturated solution of methanol in a mixture of chloroform and ethyl acetate (60 + 40; v/v). The CE interface consisted of a nylon capillary column (50 cm x 0.7 cm I.D.) packed with capillary tubing carbonate bonded alumina using a sol-gel process. The preconcentration and separation of the beta-blockers using CC-SLE were made possible due to its high selectivity for beta-blockers and their different solubility in the two extractant solutions. Optimization of the CC-SLE-CE methodology was carried out with a short capillary column, in which adsorption of beta-blockers on the capillary wall was considered to be the main cause for peak tailing.
