This distribution includes the following data layers: Elevation:Surface height in millimeters. Relief:Relief in meters, in the WGS84 projection (or as specified in the original data set). XY Zone:The geographic projection zone and datum used in the underlying data set. The units of the SRTM files are in meters. XY Zone Name:Name of the geographic projection zone and datum used in the underlying data set. Projection:Name of the geographic projection used in the underlying data set. Datum:Name of the datum used in the underlying data set. Format:Format of the underlying data set (ARC ASCII or X and Y Grid). Min Lat/Lon:Minimum latitude/longitude values for each square. Max Lat/Lon:Maximum latitude/longitude values for each square. Elevation Units:Unit of elevation (e.g., as a percentage or fraction of a value of 100 meters). The aerial images or contours in this dataset were adjusted using the values specified in this table. Minimum:Minimum elevation value. Maximum:Maximum elevation value. Ranges:Ranges of values (e.g., -10/10/50). Direction:Value in degrees (e.g., 10°/50°). Effects:Value for Cartographer's effect (e.g., 50/10/0). The process of converting the US Topo GIS files to Grid Cartographer files is designed to preserve the original topographic relief (i.e. elevation) by using the cells in the GIS topo files as the base to which all new cells are linked. This dataset is a virtual product. If you have a meter or a scale, you can download the values and create custom Grid Cartographer products. If you don't have a meter, a ruler, or a scale, you can download the grid cartographer files and use them as a map with custom values.
