Technical Field The present disclosure relates to a semiconductor device and a method of fabricating the same. In particular, the present disclosure relates to a semiconductor device including a field effect transistor having a structure in which a source region and a drain region are formed spaced from each other, and to a method of fabricating the same. 2. Description of the Related Art Semiconductor devices such as a field effect transistor having a source region and a drain region formed spaced from each other (see e.g., Japanese Unexamined Patent Application Publication No. 2015-141089 (Paragraphs [0021] to [0023], FIG. 1, etc.), hereinafter referred to as Patent Document 1) have been produced in a large quantity as power devices for use in high-power applications such as a motor. To meet a demand for higher integration, reduction in a lateral dimension of the semiconductor device has been pursued. However, such a reduction in lateral dimension results in a risk of short-circuiting between the source region and the drain region. In contrast, Patent Document 1 discloses a technique for forming a vertical channel and thus suppressing short-circuiting between the source region and the drain region. FIG. 14 illustrates a semiconductor device according to a first embodiment of a first conventional technique disclosed in Patent Document 1 (see, e.g., Japanese Unexamined Patent Application Publication No. 2015-141089 (Paragraphs [0010] to [0021], FIG. 1, etc.). The semiconductor device illustrated in FIG. 14 includes a semiconductor substrate 21 having an n--type semiconductor region (hereinafter referred to as a first semiconductor region) 22 and an n--type semiconductor region (hereinafter referred to as a second semiconductor region) 23 on a first principal surface. Also included in the semiconductor device illustrated in FIG. 14 are an n-type source region 24, an n
