Adobe Photoshop 2021 (Version 22.4.3)

Initially, I was unimpressed with the lowly mobile app compared to the desktop app. But after having used some of the fun features and image editing for a while on the go, I found myself appreciating the mobile app. I could use it on the bus, in the garden, or just to edit images on the go. It's unfortunate that Photoshop CC for iPad doesn't allow you to easily edit images without having to export them and send them to the desktop for editing, something you could do in the past. With the onscreen slider and rotation features, this tool will start to feel more like Photoshop than the iPhone app. Have not had any issues with this app and very pleased with it so far. Would be a great photo editing app for iPad and I've always like the new approach of letting users customize their tools and make them adapt to how they work best (like Lightroom and Adobe Stock). The only small issue I have had is being able to change resolution settings with the app, which I think would be nice to have as a toggle in the menu bar to update all of the toolbars quickly. Of course with no large resolution workflow requiring the use of a desktop app, this isn't a big deal. But would be nice if it were on-boarded without having to use another app. I've been using it for a few days now, so far so good, I've only had minor glitches that I have been able to work around. So far no freezing since the update to version 1.0.3 thanks to the new feature. I finally got around to using my iPad Pro in my design workflows after years of working exclusively on my desktop PC. While my old workflows are still intact, I found it necessary to rebuild many and often expected scenarios based on the new tools available in Photoshop.
